Summary of the Board's Decision

- [1] The Respondent was charged with offences relating to carrying out prescribed electrical work (PEW) while unlicensed. The Respondent was also charged with providing a false and misleading return.
- [2] The Respondent accepted that he had committed the disciplinary offences as charged. The Board determined that he would be fined pursuant s14M(f) of the Act. The penalty was reduced from starting point of $2000.00 to a final fine of $1000.00, taking into account the mitigating factors present. The Respondent was also ordered to pay costs of $250. A record of the offending will be recorded on the public Register for a period of three years. The Respondent will be named in this decision and an article about this matter will be published in the electron. The Respondent will not be named in the electron article.

Introduction

- [3] The hearing resulted from a complaint about the conduct of the Respondent and a report under s147G(1) of the Act from the Investigator that the complaint should be considered by the Board.
- [4] The Respondent was served with a notice setting out the alleged disciplinary offences the Investigator reported should be considered by the Board.
- [5] Prior to the hearing, the Respondent and the Board were provided with all of the documents the Investigator had in his power or possession. The Respondent was engaged to carry out PEW at the Property associated with:

- the installation of solar panels and inverters.

[6] The above PEW was carried out on or around 16 April 2018. At that time the Respondent was not licenced. The Respondent failed to renew his licence when it lapsed.

Function of Disciplinary Action

[7] The common understanding of the purpose of professional discipline is to uphold the integrity of the profession. The focus is not punishment, but the protection of the public, the maintenance of public confidence and the enforcement of high standards of propriety and professional conduct. Those purposes were reiterated by the Supreme Court of the United Kingdom in *R v Institute of Chartered Accountants in England and Wales*¹ and in New Zealand in *Dentice v Valuers Registration Board*².

[8] Disciplinary action under the Act is not designed to redress issues or disputes between a complainant and a respondent. In McLanahan and Tan v The New Zealand Registered Architects Board,³ Collins J. noted that:

“... the disciplinary process does not exist to appease those who are dissatisfied The disciplinary process ... exists to ensure professional standards are maintained in order to protect clients, the profession and the broader community.”

[9] The Board can only inquire into “the conduct of an electrical worker” with respect to the grounds for discipline set out in s143 of the Act. It does not have any jurisdiction over contractual matters.

Procedure

[10] The matter proceeded on the basis of an Agreed Statement of Facts.

[11] The Board was assisted by oral submissions from Mr Millar and the Respondent.

Evidence

[12] The Board must be satisfied on the balance of probabilities that the disciplinary offences alleged have been committed⁴. The Board notes, as regards evidence in proceedings before it, that the provisions of s147W of the Act apply. This section states:

In all proceedings under this Part, the Board may, subject to section 156, receive as evidence any statement, document, information, or matter that may in its opinion assist it to deal effectively with the matter before it, whether or not it would be admissible as evidence in a court of law.

- [13] The general rule is that all facts in issue, or relevant to the issue in a case, must be proved by evidence. As the Investigator and Respondent agreed to the facts, it was not necessary to call any further evidence or to test the evidence as outlined in the Statement.
- [14] The alleged disciplinary offences were outlined in the notice of proceeding dated 26 June 2025. The first disciplinary offence related to undertaking prescribed electrical work on solar panels and inverters when the Respondent's practicing licence had lapsed.
- [15] The second offence related to false and misleading certification of the work, in that as the Respondent was not licenced, he could not certify the work as being compliant and safe.

Board's Decision

- [16] By installing solar panels and inverters when not authorised to do so, as his licence had lapsed, the Respondent has committed a disciplinary offence under s 143(d) of the Act.
- [17] The Certificate of Compliance was false and misleading in that the Respondent was not authorised (licenced) to carry out the work and not authorised to certify it.
- [18] The Board has determined that the Respondent failed to comply with section 143 (d) and section 143(f) of the Act.

Penalty, Costs and Publication

- [19] Having found that one or more of the grounds in section 143 applies the Board must, under s147M of the Act¹, consider the appropriate disciplinary penalty, whether the Respondent should be ordered to pay any costs and whether the decision should be published.
- [20] The Respondent was invited to make submissions at the hearing as regards penalty, costs and publication. The Respondent sought non-publication. He has been an electrician for a long time and was concerned that publication may impact his business.
- [21] The Respondent explained the mitigating circumstances in relation to the offending. He did not recall receiving reminder notices about his licence renewal. He explained that a first aid course he had undertaken had not been registered on the system. It was an oversight not to follow this up. The Respondent did not want a fine imposed.
- [22] Counsel for the investigator submitted that the Respondent had not previously appeared, had taken responsibility and co-operative throughout investigation. Counsel for the Investigator also acknowledged the contents of the letter provided by the Respondent and the explanation as to why he failed to renew his licence. Counsel for the Investigator was neutral on penalty and publication but noted that there did not appear to be circumstances that would warrant departure from the principle of open justice.

Penalty

- [23] The Board has the discretion to impose a range of penalties, which are set out in s147M of the Act. Exercising that discretion and determining the appropriate penalty requires that the Board balance various factors, including the seriousness of the conduct and any mitigating or aggravating factors present.⁵ It is not a formulaic exercise, but there are established underlying principles that the Board should take into consideration. They include:⁶
- (a) protection of the public and consideration of the purposes of the Act;⁷
 - (b) deterring the Respondent and other Electrical Workers from similar offending;⁸
 - (c) setting and enforcing a high standard of conduct for the industry;⁹
 - (d) penalising wrongdoing;¹⁰ and
 - (e) rehabilitation (where appropriate).¹¹
- [24] Overall, the Board should assess the conduct against the range of penalty options available in s147M of the Act, reserving the maximum penalty for the worst cases¹² and applying the least restrictive penalty available for the particular offending.¹³ In all, the Board should be looking to impose a fair, reasonable, and proportionate penalty¹⁴ that is consistent with other penalties imposed by the Board for comparable offending.¹⁵
- [25] In general, when determining the appropriate penalty, the Board adopts a starting point based on the principles outlined above prior to it considering any aggravating and/or mitigating factors present.¹⁶
- [26] Based on the above, the Board's penalty decision is the starting point for the offending is fine of $2000.00. Taking into account the Respondent's guilty plea, previous good character, remorse and co-operation as well as the mitigating circumstances relating to the offending, the fine will be reduced to $1000.00. Given the length of time that the Respondent was unlicensed and the need to send a deterrent message, the Board considered that a fine was an appropriate outcome.

¹⁶ In Lochhead v Ministry of Business Innovation and Employment 3 November [2016] NZDC 21288 the District Court recommended that the Board adopt the approach set out in the Sentencing Act 2002.

Costs

- [27] Under s147N of the Act, the Board may require the Respondent to pay the Board any sum that it considers just and reasonable towards the costs and expenses of, and incidental to the investigation, prosecution and the hearing.
- [28] The Respondent should note that the High Court has held that 50% of total reasonable costs should be taken as a starting point in disciplinary proceedings and that the percentage can then be adjusted up or down having regard to the particular circumstances of each case.¹⁷
- [29] In Collie v Nursing Council of New Zealand,¹⁸ where the order for costs in the tribunal was 50% of actual costs and expenses, the High Court noted that:
- But for an order for costs made against a practitioner, the profession is left to carry the financial burden of the disciplinary proceedings, and as a matter of policy that is not appropriate.*
- [30] In Kenneth Michael Daniels v Complaints Committee 2 of the Wellington District Law Society,¹⁹ the High Court noted:
- [46] All cases referred to in Cooray were medical cases and the Judge was careful to note that the 50 per cent was the general approach that the Medical Council took. We do not accept that if there was any such approach, it is necessarily to be taken in proceedings involving other disciplinary bodies. Much will depend upon the time involved, actual expenses incurred, attitude of the practitioner bearing in mind that whilst the cost of a disciplinary action by a professional body must be something of a burden imposed upon its members, those members should not be expected to bear too large a measure where a practitioner is shown to be guilty of serious misconduct.
- [47] Costs orders made in proceedings involving law practitioners are not to be determined by any mathematical approach. In some cases 50 per cent will be too high, in others insufficient.
- [31] The Board has adopted an approach to costs that uses a scale based on 50% of the average costs of different categories of hearings, simple, moderate and complex. The current matter was simple. Adjustments based on the High Court decisions above are then made.
- [32] Based on the above the Board's costs order is that the Respondent is to pay the sum of $250.00 toward the costs of and incidental to the matter. In setting the amount of costs the Board took into account that the Respondent had agreed to the matter proceeding by way of an Agreed Statement of Facts.

Publication

- [33] As a consequence of its decision, the Respondent's name and the disciplinary outcomes will be recorded in the public register as required by the Act²⁰. The Board can, pursuant to s147Z of the Act, also order publication over and above the public register notation. Under s147Z the Board may, if no appeal is brought within 20 working days of its decision, direct the Registrar to cause a notice stating the effect of the decision or order, the reasons for the decision or order, and (unless the Board directs otherwise) the name of the person in respect of whom the decision or order was made, to be published in the Gazette and any other publications as may be directed by the Board.
- [34] As a general principle, such further public notification may be required where the Board perceives a need for the public and/or the profession to know of the findings of a disciplinary hearing. This is in addition to the Respondent being named in this decision.
- [35] Within New Zealand, there is a principle of open justice and open reporting which is enshrined in the Bill of Rights Act 1990²¹. The Criminal Procedure Act 2011 sets out grounds for suppression within the criminal jurisdiction²². Within the disciplinary hearing jurisdiction, the courts have stated that the provisions in the Criminal Procedure Act do not apply but can be instructive²³. The High Court provided guidance as to the types of factors to be taken into consideration in *N v Professional Conduct Committee of Medical Council*²⁴.
- [36] The courts have also stated that an adverse finding in a disciplinary case usually requires that the name of the practitioner be published in the public interest²⁵. It is, however, common practice in disciplinary proceedings to protect the names of other persons involved as naming them does not assist the public interest.
- [37] Based on the above, the Board will publish a general article in the Electron summarising the matter. The Respondent will not be identified in the Electron. The Registrar will record the Board's action in the Register of Electrical Workers in accordance with section 128(1)(c)(viii) of the Act. The Respondent will be named in this decision, which will be publicly available on the Board's website.
- [38] The Respondent should also note that the Board has not made any form of order under section 153(3) of the Act which allows for prohibition of publication.

Penalty, Costs and Publication Orders

- [39] For the reasons set out above, the Board directs that:

²⁰ Refer sections 128 of the Act
